Notes on the Official Program

The 2017 Sarajevo Symposium will only be as dynamic as you (the Class of 2017) choose to make it. Ask pointed questions, challenge assumptions, brainstorm grand ideas, and push yourselves to break through the mental and emotional challenges that will inevitably arise in a program of this intensity. You, the student body, are the force that gives life to the black and gray lines in this booklet. You are the future leaders, and the world will soon turn to you for solutions. We at the International Peace & Security Institute are honored to be a part of your growth.

Objectives of the Symposium

As a group, we will explore how to address some of the complex challenges that practitioners face when working in post-conflict environments. Rather than focusing on one area of practice, we wanted to offer a broad perspective on transitions, while also remaining sensitive to country specific circumstances. Bosnia and Herzegovina, Colombia and Syria will be our main case studies. Our hope is to draw out lessons and think creatively about solutions. Our discussions will benefit immensely from the unique experiences that you all bring. We may not leave the Symposium with a crystal-clear view on what determines a “successful” transition, but hopefully with new ideas and inspiration for concrete action.

The IPSI “Unconference”

- WHEN Weekdays for the final 30 minutes of lunch (as per sign-ups)
- WHERE SSST break-out rooms
- WHAT An unconference is a conference organized, structured and led by the people attending it. Instead of passive listening, all attendees and organizers are encouraged to become participants, with discussion leaders providing moderation and structure for attendees. Unconferences allow greater freedom of movement and exchange of ideas. Instead of one person delivering prepared remarks in front of a PowerPoint presentation or a panel discussing a set topic, unconferences encourage active participation by all attendees.
- HOW A whiteboard with a matrix of rooms and times is available to IPSI participants, staff, and lecturers to populate as they wish. If an attendee (or group of attendees) would like to self-organize a topic of debate, a collaborative brainstorming session, a proposed group project, a research presentation, etc. all he/she will have to do is write his/her name and topic on the whiteboard. Although all unconference sessions are limited to 30 minutes per day, there is no limit to the number of consecutive days a session may meet.

Peer-to-Peer (P2P) Presentations

- WHEN Weekday evenings (after dinner)
- WHERE VIP Kolonija Sarajevo
- WHAT At IPSI programs, we strive for as much learning to take place outside the classroom as in the official curriculum. The P2P Presentations provide an in-depth opportunity for participants to share their knowledge with fellow attendees on personal experience and skills through screening documentaries and/or facilitating practical skills trainings.
- HOW IPSI will schedule the P2P Presentations to roughly coincide with topics and trainings taking place in the official program. To sign up for a P2P timeslot, participants should fill-out the “Optional Participant Presentations” form on their online accounts before the start of the Symposium.
